

Where the $750 goes

A Stretch Bed sells for $750 and nothing is added to it. The same price applies to every buyer.

PART OF THE PRICE	PER BED	LABEL
Making the bed: recycled plastic, poles, canvas, hardware, power and paid labour	about $262	provisional
Freight to community, absorbed by Goods on Country	$100	modelled
Community work around the bed: visits, build days, training, absorbed by Goods on Country	$100	modelled
Reaches Goods on Country to run the organisation	$288	modelled

A community organisation sells it

The whole $750 is theirs.

Goods on Country sells it

Making, freight and facilitation come out first; $288 carries the organisation.

What that means for the organisation

Running Goods on Country costs $251,224 a year. At about $288 a bed, 874 beds a year carries it with no grant. This year makes 400, which bring about $115,200; the $150,000 loan carries the rest while sales grow, and beds beyond 874 a year repay it. The Queensland facility can make 1,152 beds a year.

The make cost stays provisional until the yield off a bought leg panel is confirmed. If it comes in higher, this page and every figure built on it changes.
