

How storyteller consent is recorded, used and withdrawn

Goods on Country records the voices of the people who make and receive its beds in Empathy Ledger, a consent-based storytelling platform. Consent is held per person and per quote.

What a storyteller controls

Under the Empathy Ledger privacy policy a storyteller can see their information, correct it, ask for it to be deleted, choose who can see each story, and withdraw consent at any time. Anyone under 18 needs a parent's consent, and stories involving young people need further approval.

How Goods on Country uses a voice

TIER	WHAT IT ALLOWS	PEOPLE
External	Cleared for the open web and funder material	37
Website	Website only, never in funder material	1
Funder	Funder material only	1
Hold	Not used outside the team	4
Pending	Not used until the tier is confirmed	3

- A quote is printed exactly as said. Nobody's words are paraphrased into a quote.
- A quote on hold or retired is never used, and a withdrawn consent takes the quote off every surface.
- A community's own records, such as a count of who sleeps where, stay with the community organisation. Goods on Country receives a total and a delivery list.

The people cleared at the external tier are listed in attachment 02.
